D) How does Orbis Financial make money?

Orbis Financial's revenue streams consist of treasury-related revenues and custody and clearing revenues.

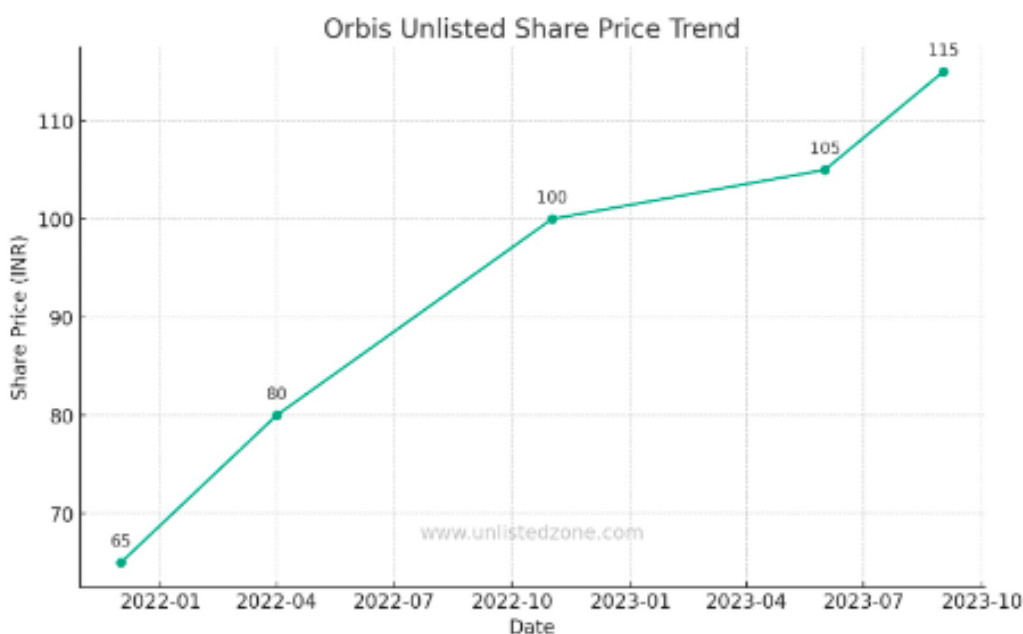

The company's fee income remains annuity-based (based on AUC) and transaction-oriented (linked to settlement volume), thereby limiting its exposure to market and credit risks to some extent.

E) Orbit Financial Business Risk

1. Modestly sized operations. Market share was modest at 0.35% in FY2021/22. Therefore, performance needs to be checked as the company gets larger.
2. The custody business is subject to concentration risk with the top 10 clients accounting for around 51% of the total custody assets as of September 2021.
3. As a professional clearing member, the company reported that its clearing volume increased from Rs 3,040 crore in FY19 to Rs 1,320 crore in FY2021, though its market share in the total clearing volume remains marginal: equity derivatives 0.23%, currency derivatives 1.16%, commodity derivatives 3.28% and cash segment 0.32% as of September 30, 2021.
4. Orbis Financials derives its revenue from the capital markets. Therefore, revenue and profitability will continue to depend on market developments.
5. Currently, there are about 20 deposit service providers registered with SEBI, including 15 bank-sponsored depository institutions, four financial institution-sponsored depository institutions, one privately-sponsored depository institution, and Orbis Financials. However, the industry continues to be dominated by bank depository institutions.
6. To attract new customers, Orbis Financial needs to depend on its partner network. The cost-to-income ratio is the operating expenses divided by the operating profit generated. The cost-to-income ratio is 74%. This means that for a revenue of Rs 100, the expenses are Rs 75. Since Orbis Financial is a small business, this value remains high.

F) Orbis Unlisted Share Price: Rs 65 to Rs 115.

The rise in Orbis Unlisted Share Price from Rs 65 to Rs 115 marks a 76% increase in a span of 12 months. This growth highlights several factors including increasing investor confidence and strong financial performance which played a key role in the rise in Orbis Unlisted Share Price.
